

CROYDON MAN IS CAPTURED AFTER STEALING JEWELS

George Walker, Who Also Resides in Tioga, Caught
With the Goods

EMPTY GUN USED

Chase Takes Place After Man
Enters Home in Wis-sioning

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—A man armed with an empty shot-gun, bluffed a robber into surrendering, following a chase after the man had entered the home of Owen Wright, 6121 Erdrick street, Wissioning, and taken $500 worth of jewelry.

The prisoner, George Walker, thirty, Emerald street, near Tioga, who says he also lives in Croydon, had the jewelry in his pockets when he was captured two blocks from the scene of the robbery. He told police it was his first "job."

There was no one in at Wright's home when Walker walked up to the front door and rang the bell. Failing to get an answer, the man broke the glass in the front door, reached in and turned the lock. Then he proceeded to rob the first and second floors.

Walker was coming down the stairs to the first floor when Wright walked up to the front door. Noticing the broken glass Wright ran to the house next door, but there was no one at home there, either.

So he dashed into the home of Harry Thorpe, 6117 Erdrick street, and told Thorpe that his home had been entered. Thorpe grabbed the empty shot-gun and as both men came out on the porch, Walker ran from the Wright home and started down the street, with Wright and Thorpe close behind.

Near the field of the Frankford Athletic Association, at Erdrick and Deveraux streets, Wright and Thorpe were close behind Walker.

"Stop, or I'll shoot!" Thorpe called to the fleeing man.

The latter looked over his shoulder and saw the gun pointed towards him. He stopped and was marched back to Thorpe's home, and police were notified.

Walker told detectives he made a tour of Erdrick street early last night looking for a place to rob, and picked out Wright's home. He declared that he committed the robbery because he was out of work.

Man Sustains Injuries and Burns in Highway Crash

One man is in the Harriman Hospital, here, and the second, injured, is believed to be in another hospital in a nearby city, as the result of a head-on crash on the Lincoln Highway, South Langhorne, last evening, during a heavy fog.

Peter Sesko is the injured man who was brought to the Bristol institution, having sustained a five-inch wound on his forehead in which seven stitches were taken; contusions and abrasions on the hands, three stitches being required in the right hand; probable fracture of the left arm; burns on both legs from ankles to knees.

Sesko's burns were sustained when the truck he was driving from Trenton enroute to West Philadelphia caught fire following an impact with another truck. It is stated that Sesko attempted to go around a car ahead, and did not, owing to the fog, notice a car approaching from the opposite direction. The man in the second car was uninjured, but Sesko's companion is believed to have been hurt.

The machine burst into flames just after the crash, and this added to the horror of the accident.

LODGE CHARGE AGAINST AN AUTO CLUB OFFICER

J. Maxwell Smith, of Keystone
Club, Said to Misrepresent
Arrests

OVERSTEPPED BOUNDS

A charge that J. Maxwell Smith, secretary of the Keystone Automobile Club, deliberately misrepresented as "reprisals" routine arrests of truck drivers by the State Highway Patrolmen and New Jersey State police is made by J. B. Champion, field sergeant of Troop A in Bucks and Montgomery counties.

More than 200 Pennsylvania truck drivers operating habitually in New Jersey without foreign license plates have been fined $16.50, since Monday, upon orders from Harold Hoffman, New Jersey commissioner of motor vehicles, to clean up the situation. All are said to have overstepped the fifteen days of grace allowed Pennsylvania motor vehicles in New Jersey. Fines now amount to nearly $3,500.

"Mr. Smith has said the reason for the drive on Pennsylvania trucks in New Jersey is because the Pennsylvania State Highway Patrol conducted an extensive drive in Norristown a few days ago against trucks bearing New Jersey tags," Sergeant Champion said last night at the Langhorne Barracks.

"This statement is absolutely false as there has been no drive in Norristown during the past two weeks or for the past two months. There have been arrests by patrolmen from the Doylestown, Collegeville and Langhorne stations but only of known offenders.

"I explained this to Mr. Smith at the Langhorne Barracks Tuesday night, before he issued his statement offering the club's legal service to the 'innocent' victims of the alleged drive and calling the New Jersey action a 'reprisal,'" the sergeant declared. "I further warned him he would be overstepping the bounds of truth if he named it so."

Delaware Motorist Hurt When His Truck Turns Over

The vehicle turned on its side after leaving the thoroughfare. Reed, the only occupant, was taken to the hospital by passersby.

"HINDENBURG OR SOCIALISM?" IS ISSUE IN GERMAN ELECTION

Issue Gradually Emerging from the Clamor and Confusion of the Campaign Preparatory to Election of a New German Reichstag, September 14th

(International News Service herewith begins publication of a series of four articles by its Berlin correspondent which throw a new light on the forthcoming German election. They show that the results of this election are of world-wide significance and may vitally affect the course of events not only in Germany but through the world.)

By Otto D. Tollscus
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
BERLIN, Sept. 12.—"Hindenburg or Socialism."

That is the main issue which is gradually emerging from the clamor and confusion of the German election campaign preparatory to the election of a new German Reichstag, September 14.

A new "Hindenburg line" has been dug right through the German people and along this line is being fought out a battle of ballots which may prove no less momentous to the world than the battle of bullets along that other Hindenburg line in France, and may decide whether ultimately, Germany is going to go the way of America or the way of Russia.

The multiplicity of parties and the specifically German capacity for organizing even petty material wants and wishes into a philosophic "Weltanschauung," of which every German has his own, has done much to obscure the vital issues of this election, even to the Germans themselves.

But above the confusion stands the towering figure of the 82-year-old warrior statesman, who though supposedly neutral in politics, has become a political program and a battle cry.

The whole crux and cause of the election is the grave economic crisis which, though world-wide in scope, has hit Germany with particular force, and has already produced three million unemployed, unsettled government finances and started a catastrophic flight of capital from the country to the tune of ten billion marks.

It is significant of the situation that the economic troubles have crowded completely in the back-ground the issue of monarchy or republic which dominated many previous elections. Only the German Nationalists under Alfred Hugenberg uphold the monarchy in their party platform. All other parties, whatever the thought of their individual members, have dropped monarchy as an issue of the day—for one reason because one-fourth of all the voters 'became of voting age since the revolution of 1918.'

The economic crisis is blamed on two main causes around which the election campaign rages. One is the Young Plan of Reparation Payments, which takes $500,000,000 out of the country annually without return value.

The other is Socialism. The Young plan which was to bring amelioration is blamed by all parties for complicating the German business situation. Even Josef Wirth, former Chancellor and present minister of the interior called the "Father of the Policy of Fulfillment," predicts that if the present crisis continues Germany will be unable to fulfill the Young Plan. Demands are growing louder

Six laborers narrowly escaped being crushed to death when a building in which they were working at Perkassie, Wednesday, was brought down in complete ruins by a shunted freight car which hit a loading platform and knocked the structure off the pilings on which it was built.

The large frame shack, which was used as a cement storage house, was demolished on all sides, the front caved in within a few feet of the heads of the men who were working there, and the remains left perched at an angle of forty-five degrees.

When the men climbed out of the wreckage it was found that none of them had even suffered so much as a single scratch.

The remarkable accident took place on the northern spur of the Reading Railroad. The cement house is located at a safe distance from the track, with which it is connected by a loading platform run out to freight cars when needed.

The platform, apparently, had not been withdrawn the last time a car had been unloaded, an extended from the front of the building slightly over the tracks.

An engineer, not realizing this fact, shunted a car down the track. The car struck the platform, which literally pushed the building over a bank.

The force of the blow demolished the sides of the building and the roof collapsed. It fell for a few feet, and then chanced to catch on a protecting timber and did not reach the heads of the men in the room.

Used as a cement storage house, was had been unloaded, and extended from the front of the building slightly over the tracks.

When the whole building tipped over and slid from the pilings, the men were all hurled into one corner, and heavy bags of cement fell about them, but for some unaccountable reason.

AROUND THE WORLD TODAY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The Washington Star says it has learned from an authoritative source that New York detectives are seeking Elaine Dawn, an Atlantic City night club hostess, for questioning regarding the disappearance of Justice Joseph H. Crater, of the New York Supreme Court.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 12.—Efforts by opponents of prohibition to obtain declarations in the Ohio Republican State platform favoring repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment or a State referendum on it failed before the Resolutions Committee at the Republican State Convention last night. Each proposal received but three of the twenty-two votes.

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 12.—For the first time on record a man committed suicide by jumping from the cupola of St. Peter's Basilica. Marcello Nitrati, a pilgrim from Cortena, leaped from the dome and was killed when he struck the street in St. Martha's Square.

One of the dome guardians accosted Nitrati when he was sitting on the sill of one of the small windows in the cupola. He replied: "I am doing nothing. I am going right away."

As the guard turned away, Nitrati leaped through the window. He was dead when police reached the spot.

MESSINA, Italy, Sept. 12.—At least five persons were killed and several scores injured, some seriously, in a simultaneous earthquake and eruption of Stromboli volcano near here yesterday.

The eruption blew off the cone of Stromboli, which is on the island of the same name in the Aeolian group near here, and poured burning rock down upon the town of Stromboli and the villages of Gimotro and San Bartolo.

GENEVA, Sept. 12.—The report that Dino Grandi, Italian Foreign Minister, had returned to Rome in order to present to Premier Benito Mussolini a proposal made by France by which the latter may maintain its virtual naval superiority in the Mediterranean while Italy secures a nominal parity with her there, was circulated here tonight. Naval experts are busy exhibiting figures by which such a feat of mathematical legerdemain appears feasible. No details on the subject are forthcoming from French or Italian headquarters here.

AUGSBURG, Germany, Sept. 12.—On the basis of today's weather reports, Auguste Piccard, of the University of Brussels, announced he would start his attempt at a ten-mile balloon ascent at 6 a. m., Saturday. His wife and eldest daughter are here to witness the take-off.

Professor Piccard hopes his balloon, the largest ever built, will fly into the stratosphere, the upper layer of the earth's atmosphere, where he expects to make observations tending to solve the mystery of cosmic rays. He hopes to prove to aviators that the stratosphere would be a good highway for distance flights. The cosmic rays, he believes, may lead to discovery of sources of power far surpassing any contemplated commercially at present.

TALK OF CELEBRATION FOR BRIDGE OPENING

Burlington Chamber of Commerce Takes Initiative
in Plans

EXPECT GALA AFFAIR

Arrangements for the joint celebration of the Bristol-Burlington bridge opening are now coming to a head, a gala time being planned for.

The Burlington Chamber of Commerce is making plans to have other civic bodies co-operate, groups from both Bucks and Burlington counties being asked to take part.

It is believed that when the celebration occurs thousands will be on hand in holiday mood, rejoicing mutually over the short cut from this section of Pennsylvania to shore points and central New Jersey; as well as pleasure on the part of Jerseyites for a quicker route to this part of Pennsylvania.

Work has been progressing splendidly on the new span, the steel work being almost completed. The 540-foot lift span is to be placed by suspension process.

The Burlington Chamber of Commerce is awaiting a reply from the bridge company, whom they have asked to advertise the new thoroughfare across the Delaware River, here. In the letter the cooperative attitude of the Burlington body was also expressed.

Alongside the abutment at Maple Beach a new brick transformer building is being built.

Both Burlington and Bristol people are looking forward already to the suggested celebration, as well as those living in nearby communities.

FATHER CLAIMS BODY OF SON KILLED IN PHILA.

Says Youth Always Had Hard Luck No Matter What He Did

DOUBT RACKET THEORY

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—Nothing of a definite nature has been learned as to how Michael Kowal, 29, son of Gabriel Kowal, Bucks County farmer living on the Cottageville Road in Buckingham Township, five miles east of Doylestown, came to his death. His body was found at 7.30 yesterday morning off a lonely road known as "The Bandits' Burying Ground" near the Penrose Ferry Bridge.

The dead youth's father left Buckingham for Philadelphia to claim the body at the municipal morgue.

The police believe the Bucks County man was the victim of a gang of racketeers.

A .38-caliber bullet had pierced his heart. His body, still warm when it was found by a man going to work on a dump nearby, was lying in a pool of blood about five feet from the road near the municipal airport.

The body was taken to the municipal morgue at Wood and Thirteenth streets, where identification was made through the efforts of newspapers here and in Doylestown and by an automobile driver's license that bore the name, "Michael Kowal, Doylestown R. D. No. 2."

Because of the fact that considerable blood surrounded the spot where Kowal was found and because none of the workmen employed by the Asbury Realty Company, who were working nearly all night, heard a shot fired, police are of the opinion that Kowal was shot early in the day and "taken for a ride" to the lonely road where his body was found.

Kowal was well dressed. He appeared to police as the type operating with the racketeers.

The license in his pocket was for a small truck that was located on his father's farm in Bucks county this morning.

When informed by a Doylestown "Daily Intelligencer" representative that his son had been shot to death, Gabriel Kowal, a hard-working farmer, and the boy's mother, collapsed. They were at a loss to know why their son would be the victim of a racketeer's bullet.

"No, no I cannot believe that my boy was connected with any bootlegging racket," Gabriel Kowal said as he sobbed bitterly over the news of his boy's death.

"Now it is all over. He always did have hard luck whatever he did. About a year ago he left the farm here and went to 'Philly.' Only two weeks ago he spent Sunday with us on a visit. Oh, my, this is awful."

The dead youth is survived by two brothers and four sisters. Two sisters living in Philadelphia are Anna Kowal, 1128 Oneal street, and Sadie Capra, 819 South Second street.

FITZGERALD IS CONVICTED ON A ROBBERY CHARGE

With Two Other Young Men
Participated in Hold-Up
July 24th

COMMITTED TO JAIL

Allentown Man, Who Threw
Acid in Man's Face,
Is Convicted

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 12.—James V. Fitzgerald, Durham Locks, was convicted late yesterday on a charge of robbery. Fitzgerald took charge of a hold-up, together with two other young men, robbing the driver of an ice cream truck on the River Road near Kintnersville on July 24th. They robbed the driver of $60. Fitzgerald was convicted after the jury deliberated ten minutes. He pleaded for a new trial and Judge Keller increased the amount of bail to $10,000, in default of which he was committed to the county prison.

Fitzgerald was quite prominent and well-known in Easton. The two other young men are now serving sentences in the county prison having pleaded guilty to the same charge.

Theodore Faust, Allentown, was convicted on a charge of aggravated assault and battery. Faust threw acid into the face of W. W. Ruth, proprietor of a roadside stand, living at Milford Square. Judge Boyer sentenced Faust to from 1½ to 3 years in the Eastern Penitentiary.

The case of Rose Schemely, South Langhorne, charged with aggravated assault and battery and assault and battery was ignored by the Grand Jury yesterday and costs directed to be placed on the prosecutrix, Ella Baumelster, South Langhorne. The prosecutrix is a striker and the case grew out of the recent strike at the Hulmeville Hosiery Mill. Rose Schemely is an employee at the mill.

Victor Persichillo and Jimmie Persichillo, of Bristol, before the court on a charge of larceny and receiving stolen goods, were placed on probation. Prison sentence was suspended by Judge Boyer. They both stole a quart of milk. They were directed to pay the costs of the case within 30 days. Anthony Russo was made probation officer.

Arriving at the site of the new structure which is being erected at Edgely by the Paterson Parchment Paper Company, yesterday morning, A. J. Brendenburgh, superintendent of the Dittler Construction Company, in charge of the work, found that a fire had been built in the hoisting equipment.

Orders had not been given for the fire to be lighted, and becoming alarmed because of the fact that the boiler contained only one-fifth the necessary water needed when a fire was underway, the superintendent commenced investigation.

At the boiler Brendenburgh found a man, apparently quite intelligent, who stated he was employed by a construction company which he named, and told he had been given orders to "fire up." He also stated he had the necessary license. He was very busy when approached. Forty-five pounds of steam had been "raised." Brendenburgh then noticed the name of the Byberry Hospital for the Insane on the man's clothing, and Constable Thomas Crawford was notified. The temporary "fireman" was returned to Byberry.

No damage was done to the boiler, and the fire was promptly extinguished.

RIGHTS VS. PRIVILEGES

During the decade that women have had the vote the feminists have discovered that suffrage was only one of the rights they were seeking. The tenth anniversary of the nineteenth amendment, recently observed with little ceremony, served as occasion for launching a campaign for the proposed twentieth amendment, which would declare that "men and women shall have equal rights throughout the United States and every place subject to its jurisdiction." The National Woman's Party has announced a "militant campaign" to enlist public opinion in favor of this new bill of feminine rights.

"Equal rights" will have as little effect on the status of women as political equality has had. Civilization extends privileges to the weaker sex, and they far outweigh all "rights" that can be bestowed by law. "Equal rights" may gain advantages for the few, but woman in general will continue to make her way in the world through the exercise of privileges accorded by the gallant male. Rights will become effective only where privileges fail.

Political equality has benefited the women very little, if you except those who have been rewarded with offices or jobs for "producing." And legal equality will put them at a disadvantage, for under the present order they have every advantage. Equal rights at law is one thing masculinity would have demanded long ago but for the instinctive gallantry of the sex.

READY TO HELP

Once more the United States succors suffering humanity. The United States Government and the American Red Cross were the first on the scene in hurricane-wrecked Santo Domingo, living up to tradition with prompt and practical response to the first calls for assistance.

But as the magnitude of the disaster becomes apparent it is evident that the continuing measures of relief, in addition to those that have been applied to meet the immediate emergency, will have to be much more extensive than had at first been thought necessary.

Thousands of persons are homeless and hungry. Thousands are in need of medical care. The hurricane was a calamity of major proportions and must be treated as such.

The first task of the army of relief workers was to provide food and shelter and first aid to the storm victims. Now comes the great work of reconstruction and rehabilitation.

Realizing their special responsibility, the American people will want to have their full share in this work of restoration. They will wait the opportunity to help and there can be no doubt that whatever is required will be quickly forthcoming. When the call comes, the $50,000 already given by the Red Cross will be but a drop in the stream of financial assistance which will flow from the United States to Santo Domingo.

A local poetess, who lives her poems, took a widely advertised seasick remedy last evening before starting one on ships.

The wrecked lives of Jerry March's roommates, Connie and Constance, reacted on the beautiful and intelligent Jerry, who stood by them when Connie married a flashy pick-up and found he was a thief it was Jerry who sent her back home. When Constance went off with David, younger son of the owner of the department store where they worked, and was soon deserted, it was Jerry who tried to nurse her through a breakdown. Because of David's treatment of her friend she repulsed Tony, his older brother, whom she loved, and he apologized for mistaking her character and pleaded for another chance. That night while Jerry went for a ride with an old admirer, Constance listened in on the radio to an account of a reception for David and his bride-to-be. Jerry returned to find her friend dying of poison. Only one person can save Constance. Jerry rushes to the Jardine estate to meet David's cowardly refusal. But Tony forces his brother to go to Tony's car. The three dash to Constance's bedside.

Conclusion:—Out of Bitterness—

There was no change in Constance. The doctor had drawn his chair up to the bed and closely followed the breath that came fainter and fainter and with more and more difficulty. Her lips were slightly parted, her body motionless, her eyes closed.

As Jerry tiptoed in, her eyes begged the doctor for news. He only shrugged and nodded and went back to his patient. So she knew that Constance was still alive but there was just as little hope. She beckoned to Tony and David and they, too, came in.

Jerry talked to the doctor in a low tone. He agreed. Science could do so much. Let us see what the heart can do. He left his chair and paced about the room, he and Tony meeting each other in their rambles, two helpless interlopers in the house of death.

As for David, one glimpse of Constance's ashen face had been enough for several days, but is recuperating very nicely at this time.

Jerry had won through to happiness him. No longer the resentful, frightened son of the house of Jardine, torn from his guests and his fiancée for the sake of a little "girl from the store" who had taken poison, he knelt by the bed, overcome and buried his face in the sheets which were no whiter or colder than Connie's hand.

"Connie," his voice came muffled and broken. "Connie—I'm here—Connie, do you hear me?"

It did not seem as if she could die almost have been dead. Let a tremor went through the frail body at the sound of the beloved voice. With a last effort, her eyes fluttered open.

"Do you hear me, Connie—I've come back—"

The wonderful radiance of her eyes was all for him. Tears streamed down Jerry's face. With one hand she clutched her mouth to keep back the agony of open sob. Nothing—nothing must destroy Connie's one chance—oh, there was still hope, there must be if there was still life left in her body to enable her to look like that.

Connie's lips barely formed the words "For always?"

Fearing that David would not be quick-witted enough to make the absolutely necessary answers, Jerry moved close to the bed where she could prompt him and Tony, too, came to stand at the foot. His anxiety was for Jerry. Her face, drowned in tears, earned him to be vigilant. Should her friend die, it would be too much for her endurance, already strained to the breaking-point.

"Yes—for always?" assented David in a choked whisper. "You—you've got to get well, Connie—"

Jerry quickly leaned toward her. "Yes—you've got to Connie—David loves you—"

As a smile of rapture flowed over Connie's face, the other girl caught David's eye and gave, for his benefit, a fierce little nod, like a nudge to remind him.

"I'll never go away—from you—Connie," he gasped.

Connie clutched his hand. The strength of the divine went into their

A number of new enterprises were decided upon at the meeting of the directors of the Grand View Hospital, Sellersville, on Tuesday, which will be begun this fall. Several new records of service during the past month were reported at the session.

Dr. Paul T. Moyer, of Lansdale, will conduct a well baby clinic at the hospital beginning next month. The clinic will be open each first and third Tuesday of the month.

An orthopaedic crippled children's clinic is also under consideration as an addition to the Sellersville institution. Dr. J. T. Rugh, who is consultant on the Grand View Hospital staff, will supervise the clinic which will be part of a nationwide movement being sponsored by Rotary and Kiwanis clubs. It is reported that the Lancaster service clubs, through Dr. Rugh, treated over a hundred crippled children in one year. A third clinic, giving pre-natal instruction, was also approved by the executive committee of the board of directors on Tuesday.

line" stand the "bourgeois" elements who want to preserve Germany as a "capitalistic" country with a civilization based on private property and individual initiative—if necessary by a dictatorship.

On the other side stand the forces of Socialism who want Germany to continue on the way toward complete Socialism—if necessary by a dictatorship.

Behind this fundamental economic issue stands, therefore, the issues of democracy or dictatorship.

The moderate elements in both camps are fighting to preserve democracy and to settle the issue with democratic methods.

The extremists in both camps—and their number is growing rapidly—proclaim the failure of democracy, the collapse of parliamentary government and the need of an immediate and outright dictatorship—of their own making, of course.

Meanwhile, under pressure of the desperate economic situation, Hindenburg has already taken the destiny of Germany into his own hands to a greater extent than is generally realized.

When the moderate Socialist cabinet of Chancellor Mueller failed to solve the financial situation and was overthrown by the Socialist extremists, Hindenburg picked his own cabinet, charged Chancellor Bruening expressly to govern "without the Socialists" and put Martin Schiele and Gottfried Treviranus as his own confidants into the cabinet.

When the Reichstag failed to agree on a financial program, Hindenburg dissolved it and issued a number of far-reaching emergency decrees which are to push back the Socialist tide but which prominent authorities declare unconstitutional. The experts quarrel whether Hindenburg is exercising a dictatorship or not; but General Erich Ludendorff openly charges that his former war chief engineered a regular coup d'état.

Hindenburg's sweeping emergency decrees and the policy they outline are middle are split worse than ever and the concrete basis of the election campaign. There are some who predict that if the German people repudiate the decrees and therewith the man whose signature they bear, Hindenburg will resign. This would precipitate a presidential and state crisis in which anything might happen. Some already talk about the specter of civil war, if only to banish it.

These election scares need not be taken too seriously. Hindenburg's religion of duty will keep him at his post and the civil war is not likely to go beyond the minor clashes between rival radicals that are almost daily occurrences, though these do cause annoyance and even death and injury to individuals.

The greater danger is that the new Reichstag will be even less able to legislate or form a parliamentary government than the one Hindenburg dissolved. The radical and the Communists will probably return stronger than ever. The moderate parties of the decrees and the policy they outline are middle are split worse than ever and face heavy losses. Party differences have widened and a government majority is nowhere in sight.

Both Chancellor Bruening and Minister Treviranus have already announced that if the next Reichstag is unable to function it will be dissolved again. Treviranus has emphasized that the present cabinet has obligated itself to the president to reform the man Socialism as it exists today.)

MAURICE BARRYMORE

By Alice Alden

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—There's many a society debutante just now getting wrinkles in her pretty white forehead while she ponders the problem as to which side of the footlights offers the most happiness. Should she be content to sit in the third row center and watch the show with a bored or indifferent escort who only wakes up when the chorus comes tripping on? Or should she pocket her pride, pack up her dancing practice rompers, and make the round until she finds some producer who will give her a chance to prove that she is not just another society bud in search of a new thrill.

Find Or Work

While many of the country's most beautiful debutantes are wondering whether it would be fun to go on the stage, others have gone about the task and are just now in the throes of rehearsals where unkind stage managers and producers are sometimes just a bit cynical about "those Park Avenue dames." There's beautiful June Blossom, whose name sounds like a "nom de theatre," but happens to be her own.

This lovely debutante who made her bow to society at a dance given for her by her parents at the Ritz-Carlton, last December, is now decorating the cast of "Young Sinners," playing in New York. By a pleasant coincidence her part, that of Betty Biddle, is also that of a society debutante. She studied her role while at Newport as the guest of Miss Betty Gerard.

Danced to a Career

Miss Blossom has literally danced appeared as an exhibition dancer at many fairs for charity. At one of these affairs she was spotted by Lee Shubert, who asked her if she had ever nourished thespian aspirations. The result of the talk is June Blossom's present appearance, with the promise, if she makes good, of a leading part in a new comedy imported from London, a drawing-room type of play.

All the way from Dallas, Texas, recently came lovely eighteen-year-old Marilyne Rice to New York.

The winsome granddaughter of the late Nathaniel Rice, first vice-president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railway, was supposedly headed for a season at Southampton and Newport. But instead she found her way to the sanctum of George White and persuaded him that a society girl could sometimes "hoof" as well as a professional dancer. She got the job, and is dancing her way into the hearts of theatre-goers in "Flying High."

Musical Comedy Wins

While this year's crop of society girls yearning for the glamor of the footlights, seems to be headed for musical comedy, society girls and women in former years have turned to and won success in the legitimate field. There was beautiful Julia Hoyt, who lent her dark beauty to the stage and won tremendous success in arduous roles. Critics do not treat her as a society darling. They scrutinize and report on her work minutely and with her way to a stage career. She has exacting criticism. She was universally acclaimed for her work in "Serena Blandish" a few seasons back.

It is interesting to note that while her marriage with a blue-blood, Lydig Hoyt, ended in a divorce, she has found much happiness in her marriage to an actor, Louis Calhern. Rosamond Pinchot is another society woman who has won fame as an actress.

And then there's delightful Hope Williams, member of one of Gotham's finest and most conservative families. Convinced she had stage talent, she determined to get a theatrical producer to share her convictions. Arthur Hopkins agreed to help her, with the result that she became one of New York's most popular leading women. She starred in "Holiday" and "Paris Bound," and will no doubt shortly be seen in another role that suits her crisp, clear-cut speech and manner. Her forte is comedy, otherwise she might have attained the dramatic triumphs won by another society girl, Miss Katharine Cornell. Miss Cornell, a member of a prominent Buffalo family, married a young actor and deserted the ranks of society. The young actor is now famous as a theatrical director. He is Guthrie McClintic and has directed Katharine Cornell in some of her most notable successes. With these examples in mind, there is little wonder that society girls are turning to the stage with increasing frequency, and perhaps many of them hope to make as good matrimonial catches as their professional sisters have done.

POLLYANNA

In order to understand this story, which we repeat second-hand, it is necessary to know that the town of Ypres is pronounced "Yeep" by the Belgians and "Wipers" by the English and Americans.

Queen Elizabeth of Belgium was visiting an American soldiers' hospital, and stopped to shake hands with a wounded soldier.

"Lady," said the soldier, "the Huns sure gave us hell at Wipers."

"Yeep," murmured the queen.

"He sure did shoot the daylight out of us at Wipers."

"Yeep," murmured the queen.

"There wasn't much left of us after we got through at Wipers."

"Yeep," murmured the queen.

After the royal lady had left, the soldier turned to someone:

"Who," he demanded, "was that funny looking old dame with the hic-cups?"

It will be quite a race from now on as to who gets a four-year lease on the White House at Washington.

You can lead a horse to water, but you can't find one.

"Of course," said the real estate agent, "curious things happen in my business just as in every other. Now I fully expected to rent that top suite of rooms in the Perpendicular building to a society that wanted to hire some club rooms. But it voted not to take them."

"What was the trouble?" asked a listener.

SPORTS

COMMUNICATION

Bristol, Pa., R. D.
Sept. 10, 1930.

Editor, Courier.
Dear Sir:—In reply to Mr. John Mulholland's rather hysterical article of Monday, I believe that he must have been in a highly excited state when he wrote it.

Mulholland has made a practice for some years past of hounding in on some ball club that has a reputation and draws a crowd of its own. He will then challenge them to play for the championship of the County or State, or something equally foolish. If they refuse to play then he claims that they are afraid to play his team. If they do play he then tries to cut in for 50% of the money. It is a fairly good racket because he doesn't stand to lose either way.

If he would play ball in the summer he would not have to talk so loud in the fall, as we are only too glad to play local teams that have a reputation as it creates more interest and draws larger crowds which in turn makes better baseball.

I will not take up any space in commenting on the abilities of the players on either team. I would naturally be prejudiced in favor of my own team, and besides, that is something that the fans must determine for themselves. I have friends on both teams and hope to remain so.

I will admit that Mulholland is right when he says his team was not in shape when he played its last summer. It couldn't have been to be beaten 13-4 by as miserable a team as he claims Emilie to be, when it was only their "second" game of the season. There are plenty of good ball players in Bristol and why they have not been gotten together and formed a team that could fairly represent Bristol I do not know. There has been none such since the old Third Ward team disbanded, and you don't have to come to Emilie to hear that.

However, if Mr. Mulholland insists on playing ball with Emilie, he may but it will be under conditions where he will stand a chance to lose. We will play him a series of games, whoever wins the first two games to be judged the winner. Mulholland must publish his line-up at least four days before the first game, that means every player that he intends to play, not to exceed fifteen in number. I will do the same, just as a precaution is all. That line-up must include the players that he analyzed so thoroughly in comparison with the Emilie outfit. My line-up includes the following: Afflerbach, Black, Bruce, Burns, Comly, Doster, Elfrey, Lefler, Phipps, Praul, Schoenfeldt, Tracy, Watson, Wislar, and "Vic" Rockhill. These games to be played under the direction of competent umpires on the Emilie grounds as they are the most accessible. These grounds to be kept in good condition at the expense of Emilie; the collection to be taken up by men appointed by both managers and accounted for by the same; the entire proceeds to be turned over to the team that wins the first two games. Each manager must also deposit with some mutually agreed on stakeholder the sum of one hundred dollars, one week before the first game, which amount will be turned over to the team winning the first two games.

Charity begins at home, Mr. Mulholland, and it looks like a hard winter for Emilie.

Mulholland has done the challenging so I have the right to make the conditions which I think your readers will agree are as fair for one team as the other.

This is my answer and it is up to John Mulholland to put up or shut up for the rest of the season.

E. H. SHOEMAKER,
Manager, Emilie A. A.

SPORTING FRATERNITY RULES SHARKEY OUT AS CONTENDER FOR FISTIC CROWN

Failure to Retain Public Interest, Due to Erratic Performances, May Send Sharkey and Stribling to Oblivion, Leaving Carnera, Campolo and Dempsey in Line for Battle with Schmeling

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Is Jack Sharkey through as a big-time box-office draw?

In the past few years, the Boston cry-baby has muted chance after chance to smash his way into the charmed circle of ring immortals and the public is said to have tired of paying big prices for watching his disappointing performances.

Sports experts declare that the three battlers now in line to fight an elimination tournament for the privilege of meeting Heavyweight Champion Max Schmeling for the title next year are Primo Carnera, the leaning tower of Italy; Victorio Campolo, the Argentine giant, and our own Jack Dempsey.

Young Stribling was eliminated from the calculations for the same reason as Sharkey. Despite his recent knockouts of Phil Scott and Otto Von Horat, the promoters say the public has tired of the Georgian's in and out ringwork. Against a weak opponent, Stribling looks like a fistic wizard, but against first-class opposition, he invariably fights a cautious and uninteresting battle.

Sharkey and Campolo will meet in New York soon, and if the Boston man scores an impressive win Campolo will be definitely out of the big money, although Sharkey, it is said, will not be substituted in his place among the big three.

Incidentally, the big Argentine is fighting Sharkey for the slimmest pay envelope ever given a heavyweight battler in years. Campolo was so eager to fight Sharkey that he asked only $5,000 for his work in the impending battle. He is to receive $7,500.

Whether or not Jack Dempsey will participate in a ring contest again is highly problematical. Certain very close friends of the ex-champion have sent out word that Jack would be willing to meet any of the present crop of heavyweights if he is paid his price. Dempsey, it is said, has sunk $600,000 in a Mexican resort, which is faring very poorly, and is reported in urgent need of a large chunk of cash.

Carnera's future seems to be in the hands of the gods. The giant from Italy has been pushing over set-ups since he came to this country several months ago.

There is no doubt, however, that Carnera can fight. The question is how would he fare against a first-class opponent like Sharkey or Campolo. Since coming here his managers have permitted him to meet nothing but what is termed "stumblebums."

His enormous size and the ballyhoo that has surrounded him since landing here have made Primo a stupendous drawing card all over the country. In back of the story of the elimination of Jack Sharkey as a contender for the heavyweight crown may be the enmity that has long existed between the powerful Madison Square Garden corporation and Sharkey.

The Boston Lithuanian has always been a stickler for his rights and privileges. Despite the fact that the Garden has made his fortune in paying him enormous purses for fights with Schmeling, Stribling, Scott and Dempsey, Sharkey has always held them to the letter of every agreement he has ever signed with them.
